— The New Hampshire House voted

103-30 on Wednesday to approve a bill exempting religious organizations from the state's requirement to provide contraceptive coverage. House Bill 1604 had already passed the state Senate in late January. The state House approved the measure earlier Wednesday on a 28-11 vote and it now goes to the desk of Republican Gov. Chris Sununu. The vote comes following Trump's announcement that he will repeal an Obama-era policy that made it mandatory for employers to provide contraceptive coverage in their health plans. As the law stands currently, employers can opt out of providing contraceptive coverage on religious grounds. State Rep. Al Baldasaro, a Republican from Hampton, opposed the bill, calling it "one of the most egregious bills I have ever seen come forward."

“No one will have access to contraceptives,” he said. “All they do is protect the fundamental right of parents to raise their
