I have been a long time user of windows 10, and used it for over the past 3 years now. With all this talk of macs, the difficulty i have with this application is whether i want to go for an nvidia card or AMD. I believe I may have a graphics card issue, even though it's plugged in, and hooked up to the laptop in case it goes. It is a radeon 6850 with the latest drivers. I've taken it apart and tried every connection, and power plugs. All the posts say to turn off all blu-ray drives and it's associated power cable, but I have a powered tv hooked up by HDMI cable, so that's not an option. The only option I have is the one in the link below. Barely running, it will not go to the screen and start to load the operating system. It's been this way for months on all operating systems. I can't really do anything other than wait until the graphics card gets replaced, or possibly my screen. Its running a 256Gb ssd, and 1TB 1.5Tb hard drive, this is a pretty recent build. Random ram dump, and cpu light up constantly. I have been thinking of cancelling my msdn subscription, as there is no way I can use windows 10 anymore. It is really a shame,

The Theme Designer Kit by Stardock takes you inside a theme and allows you to customize the way the desktop looks. It is a cross-platform desktop theme maker that is free and open source. The first step consists of selecting one of the several skins or themes available. All of the skins or themes provide a similar feature set. They are compatible with almost all version of Windows including Windows XP, Vista and 7. You can purchase different skins for your computer in the Stardock Web-store. Furthermore, each skin is thoroughly tested before being released into the market. In contrast to similar applications that are very complicated to use, Theme Designer Kit is extremely easy. The skins are separated into two categories, namely minimal and standard. The minimal skins have very few features whereas the standard skins come with a lot of features. For example, the standard skins include a window button control, a tool bar control, several color themes, and a toolbar. After making all of the modifications, you can save them to your computer to use them immediately. In order to install a theme, you have to drag it to the "Windows" folder. The theme appears as a new folder. You can start it by double clicking the file. Once it is open, you can navigate to its file system and copy the contents to any location you desire. You can then use the task manager to close the program after a while. Luna Royale (color)Description: Luna Royale is a set of themes for Windows XP. As all similar color themes, you can customize this tool by accessing the Windows Appearance area. Luna Royale can easily be selected from the drop down menu in the "Themes" tab. It comes in two different color styles, namely blue and black. Installing it modifies the way the window borders, Start menu and taskbar look. Furthermore, you can make several other selections regarding the way the Start menu looks. Thus, you can have it displayed in "Normal" mode, "Alternative or "Compact". The flag button can also be viewed in different colors. Normally, this is displayed in the trade-mark Windows colors (red, green, blue and yellow), but it can be set to white as well. The theme also includes a wallpaper that has green and blue hues displayed in a pattern similar to an Aurora borealis. All in all, Luna Royale is a
