Noiseware 5.0 (5007-01) Photoshop Plugin (x32/x64) [ENG] [Serial].Q: WordPress REST API Call giving "invalid JSON payload received" I'm trying to use the REST API in WordPress, as described here: I've successfully got a response from a wordpress site when using the following payload: { "action":"my-action-name", "data":{"myfield":value } } ... where myfield is a Post meta field and value is a timestamp. I'm now trying to use a get request with the following payload: GET /rest/v1.1/posts/myid?_wpnonce=my-nonce ... where myid is the post id as a string. ... and am getting the following error: { "code": "rest_invalid_payload", "message": "Invalid JSON payload received. Expected data to be an object or array, was "WP_Post object"." } It seems the error is a result of receiving a WP_Post object, not a string as the payload seems to suggest. I'm not sure how to pass the correct object to the REST API. Is there a way to convert my current string-based payload into the required object? A: I believe you can use the data- attributes to put your value in your payload, for example: { "action":"my-action-name", "data":{"myfield": "value", "data-wp 3e33713323
