G. Wells, based on the short story, "A Little Boy Lost", written by Wells for a competition organized by The Stratford Weekly Post. The novel was published in serial form in the Saturday Westminster Gazette and other publications, from January 7 to December 6, 1908. The serialized version followed the conventions of the medieval 'gothic' novel, and featured a fictional diary belonging to Littlejohn. Wells' story won second prize in the competition, which was judged by Anthony Trollope. In 1924, in serialization in the Daily News, Wells' novel was described as "an attempt to introduce a novel form to the detective story. A succinct and vigorous narrative the novelty and ingenuity of which is rather surprising." References External links Category:1908
