It was the first Firefox plugin to receive an award from Add-ons.org, and it is the only extension to receive the prestigious Award of Excellence (AOE) from The Mozilla Foundation. It also was the winner of the 2009 Mozilla Application Challenge. The new version only checks for a single word at a time, rather than the entire document as it did in the previous version. Also, in the new version, text which contains the correct word is not marked as correct or incorrect in any way. The extension also provides the ability to "Ignore" words and phrases, which will allow the extension to not make any attempts to correct words. Both the simple and advanced modes allow users to configure the context of the "Correct Now" button, which allows users to customize the checking of the word being entered and the words around it. This button can be disabled to only check for spelling mistakes or enabled to always check spelling. Autocorrect allows you to add all of your favorite words to the dictionaries and quickly correct them as you type. The first step in adding words is to select a dictionary. For example, if you want to add an English dictionary, you would choose English. You can choose from the dictionaries that are built-in to the Firefox search box (English, Chinese, Spanish, French, German, and Italian). You can also add a dictionary to the list of diction
