I didn't think twice about it, so I gave her a handful of change and told her to be careful. When we got to the store, I took care of the transaction and started to pull away, when suddenly, I felt a tug on my shirt. I could tell she was struggling to catch up to me and didn't want to give up. I looked back to see her holding on to my shirt and she wasn't letting go. Her Mom was there and looked pretty frazzled. I'm not sure if I should have encouraged her to let go, or if I should have just pulled off and forgotten about it. This happened about a week ago and I don't know whether there is a risk of my kid developing some kind of attachment disorder, but I also don't know how to deal with it. I want to learn the right way to deal with things like this. I'm not convinced that I shouldn't have just pulled off and not looked back, but I want to be careful when leaving a kid with a kid. A: I don't think this is "cause for alarm", I think it's good that you could feel her pulling you back to her. Even if she had been able to get close enough to grab your hand

If I run the rails command in the heroku terminal, I can see that the installed version of rails is the one that I've installed with rvm, but this only happens if I run the command in the heroku console. Any other way I run the command, the default version of rails is used and that's where I am confused.
