It has been reported that rhesus monkeys will lose 25% of their weight on total sleep deprivation for 28 days. In this experiment, we used a counterbalance design to determine if the monkeys were under more stress or were more stressed during sleep deprivation. Ten monkeys were subjected to sleep deprivation for 28 days by means of exposure to either a light-dark cycle or a constant darkness. Sleep and stress were measured every 4 hours in the animals' cages with radio-telemetry techniques for 28 days. The monkeys in the constant darkness group lost approximately 11% of their body weight during the 28 days of sleep deprivation. The light-dark group lost approximately 5% of their body weight during the 28 days of sleep deprivation. Lying awake during the total sleep deprivation in the constant darkness group was significantly higher than in the light-dark group (P less than 0.01). These data imply that the animals in the constant darkness group were subjected to more stress than the light-dark group.Q: Android logcat not showing anything when device has no screen, but with a device with screen it shows When I try to run Logcat on Android Studio it opens normally, but when I connect the device to a power supply, it does not show anything, although it is supposed to show the debug logs and it does show the log-out lines. I have tried to install the logcat app on both and set it to use my own logcat, but the result is the same. I do
