"FIFA 22 in Motion lets fans enjoy the new ball physics that includes an increased connection and more control with the ball," said David Rutter, Executive Producer of EA SPORTS FIFA. "The new 'HyperMotion' technology is an incredible tool to help us create the most realistic football on-screen simulation ever in the series. We're using a real-life player's data to give the ball more energy and the simulation more realism than ever before." The new broadcast-ready player motion capture system collects data from the movements of 22 players taking part in a real-world football match. This data is then used to power the physics and ball handling in FIFA 22. "We're so excited about the technology because it means we can create a more authentic player experience," said Chris McCabe, Senior Producer of FIFA. "Players are no longer a static object on the pitch. They can receive passes, retain possession, receive challenges, defend against them and move side-to-side. It's the level of realism that this technology opens up for us to create." FIFA 22 is available on Xbox One, PS4, PC, Wii U and Nintendo Switch. The Ultimate Team update is also available on all platforms.

They're not meant for patients with heart disease, diabetes, high cholesterol, high blood pressure, obesity or a predisposition for cancer. These are the unhealthy diseases whose treatment, as much as any reduction in cholesterol, blood pressure or weight, can reverse heart disease, as well as diabetes and cancer. The simple message is that we should do our best to eat well, because it's better for us than eating poorly. But just how good is "well" and "eating well"? No one has yet done the decent thing and measured this. There is
