“The changes that are being made to FIFA 22 are all about moving the ball,” said Preeti Chalana, Creative Director at EA. “So we took a lot of time studying how players played the ball and how we can put a lot more actions on players’ minds.” “It’s the best-looking football game of all time,” said Nick Channon, Creative Director at EA. “And it’s the deepest, richest simulation of all time.” “FIFA 20 introduced the advanced new Physics Engine which meant the ball rolls differently when played by different players. All 22 players have been trained for the game and work with EA’s research team to ensure their playing style aligns with the way they move in real life. The other game feature is “Real Player Motion Tech” which improves player responsiveness and allows players to play closer to the way they move in real life. “Its the player’s movements that make the difference between success and failure and we’ve put a lot more into that and we’ve really worked with the players to get what we think is the best player movement,” added Channon. You can read the full press release on EA’s website here. “We’ve captured the game play of what happens when 22 of the world’s top footballers do everything they can to win a game of football, and the result is a natural, action-packed and free flowing football experience,” said Darren Robbins, Senior Producer. “We’ve designed the entire game around creating moments that feel authentic and exciting, and we’ve done this by working closely with the top football teams and players in the world.” “And to do this we’ve used some of the world’s most advanced tools to create the most accurate football game engine ever,” continued Robbins. “By capturing hundreds of thousands of real-world player moments and actions in-engine, we’re able to unlock unrivalled authenticity for all the game moments that players will enjoy.” that your application was not installed correctly on the phone.
