How To...It was an ordinary day in a city stuck in early autumn. Gladys shook with heat — she had just left the perspiring, mischievous little boy called Martin Lovelock (they shared the same back bedroom). "I'm going to catch that bus," she called. The door slammed. Martin resumed his pig-snouted farmyard habits of chewing on toffee, which had produced a rueful "Mmmm." "Come here, I want to look at that cough," she said, flinging a new-born into her bosom. "Your hip is red," she said, looking at the girl in her arms. "Your chest is sore." "And your cheeks are puffy," she said to the boy. "I love you, I love you, I love you,"
