"Duck life for Fame"!

This game was released in 2015 during the Year of the Rooster, on May 12th, 2015. Spread the love This week, as promised, here is the third part of the SR-71 set. I'm going to split them up between these three, so you'll have to hang in there! Early on, the program-makers pretty much threw caution to the wind and went all over the place. Their massive budget must have been a little scary when they laid it all out. I suspect that they had the same concerns that we all have with throwing money on a bunch of unknowns. But for some reason, we fall for it anyway. The SR-71 was a mind-numbingly expensive project when it first started - $2 billion for the initial design contract, I believe, I could be wrong about that. The SR-71 cost them about three times that by the time it was launched - and, as with all aircraft development, continually pushed the project's time and cost up. Still, even the limitations of that budget must have been hard to live with - look at the results. Among the highlights in the third part of the set are: the Soviet Bloc were keeping a large SR-71 team, the new nose art program, and the first color photographs. With the end of the Cold War, we lost the Soviet SR-71 team and nose art, and they

◆Game Background: Reversi has succeeded in a 2D puzzle action, and you can enjoy the same action in a separate game "Reversia"! While enjoying "Reversia", various actions such as making footholds, erasing obstacles, beating enemies and dropping enemies come to the fore. They are "Z", "A" and "D" panels that can be turned to move the right or left side of the Reversia board. Display: "Dia" (left/right arrow on the mouse) moves the right/left side of the Reversia board. "Panel" (click on the mouse) turns the panel. "BAM" (right/left arrow on the mouse) lowers/highlights the panel. "Dia" is assigned to the first panel of the "Panel" function. "Z" can be assigned to the first panel or the side panel. "A" can be assigned to the second panel or the right panel. "D" can be assigned to the third panel or the left panel. "A" can make footholds, dropping enemies and beat enemies. It is also possible to assign "A" to an object such as the wall or floor, so that the sound of battle can be heard. "D" moves the "Dia" panel. "Z" reverses the "Dia" panel. "BAM" reveals the assignee. The panel that is revealed becomes the assignee panel. "Dia" can be set again by selecting a different panel. "Panel" can be set again by selecting another panel. You can assign panels to each other by double-clicking. New Features: ◆What kind of gameplay can be enjoyed? After the story of Reversi was written, the genre "puzzle action" was added to Reversia! The panels that have been assigned so far are Reversia-specific panels, but we have prepared many panels that have not been assigned to any panel, so now this function is available. The number of panels that can be attached is as many as you like. The density of the panels is also as many as you like. Set the panels where they want to go at the same time that you set the panels that you want to attach. Enjoy Puzzle Action! ◆Why
