The purpose of the study was to retrospectively evaluate the clinical results and complications of external fixation with the Ilizarov technique for the treatment of radial head fractures in which malunion had occurred. We retrospectively evaluated the clinical and radiographic results and complications of external fixation with the Ilizarov technique for the treatment of 28 radial head fractures in 25 patients (20 men and 5 women) with a mean age of 38 years (range, 20-66 years) who had a mean follow-up of 32 months (range, 24-63 months). Of the 28 fractures, eight had healed after an average of 12.8 weeks (range, 12-16 weeks) in three cases in which there was a low-energy injury, one case of an open injury, and four cases of osteoporotic fractures. The other 20 fractures were
