Simply being selected for the Maroons in game one of this year's State of Origin opener will be his lasting achievement, he insists, but is that enough to secure a place in the hallowed pantheon of Queensland greats? JT has his coach's blessing, but so does 'Daley's Army', with the easy-going former hooker making no qualms about his legacy. "I'd like to think I've built something that we can all be proud of," he told AFL.com.au. There have been suggestions that JT's hooker-in-chief, Mal Meninga, might get the honour of making the first State of Origin jumper his old teammate's final present to him, but Thurston told us to "go away". "What I do will always stand on its own," he said. "We have a great team and Mal Meninga is a top coach, one of the best there's ever been. "He's taught me a lot and has said the exact same thing that 'Roos' [Rooster] said to me before the Rabbitohs game back in 2014. "He told me I'd be a household name one day and that's what I intend to do." Thurston was referring to football writer Mark Devlin, who covered the Rabbitohs for years. It was a telling sentiment to hear from the one player we thought would never become a key cog in the Queensland machine. Occ13bf012
