1. Field of the Invention The invention is directed to a process for producing a crystalline 3,4-dimethyl-2-cyclopenten-1-one and to the compound produced by this process.

2. Discussion of the Background Methods for producing 3,4-dimethyl-2-cyclopenten-1-one are known. See, for example, H. T. Davidson and D. M. Ball, J. Am. Chem. Soc., 80, 2204, 1960.

3,4-Dimethyl-2-cyclopenten-1-one is used for preparing a series of substituted furans, such as furfural, 5-methyl furfural or 2-methyl furan. These furans are used in the preparation of furan resins, polyurethanes, polyamide resins and similar materials. It is also known to prepare the compound from the reaction of 1,3-butadiene and propene. See W. M. Salter and A. H. Harker, J. Am. Chem. Soc., 52, 649, (1930). Since the yield of this reaction is comparatively low, the compound is not very practical from an industrial point of view. A number of organic compounds are known to be produced by condensation of an enol ether and a carboxylic acid compound. See P. W. Scrivens, "Enol Ethers," in: Organic Reactions in Organic Synthesis, A. R. Katritzky, W. M. Meyers, Eds. Wiley Interscience, New York, (1985), pp. 1-47. Therefore, the object of the present invention is to provide a process for the c9d1549cdd
