to Picasso, how did I know that?" And maybe this was the key. The common characteristic of all creative people is their knack for daydreaming about their art: two of the most widespread, foolish, and frequently depicted methods for making art (painting, drawing, sculpting, making things in general) consist of bringing a set of mental images to an ever-changing physical reality. The part of our brains that imagines what is to come is the part which controls our movements, reactions, and the ability to distinguish good from bad. Thus, when we close our eyes and lie down, we are effectively putting our brains into a state that allows them to give its attention to the possibilities that are to come. If, in certain moments, we wander into a new area of art, it is very likely that this is because we have been lost in imagination for some time. We waste a lot of time, and feel frustrated because we can't find the lost part of our minds, and of course the frustrations spill out at those around us in the form of anger and grumpiness. After all, when you get down to it, we are so busy doing important things in the world that we're not able to paint, make sculptures or create pictures of our dreams, so we end up lying on the couch, getting old and bored. Poor life: we don't do what we want when we want it, and when we finally are able to do so, we end up living a miserable existence, stuck in the hypocrisy and lack of magic of others. We have no time to think, and eventually we end up thinking of nothing. We lose ourselves in our activity, we never get off course and finally we give up. We get a little old and suddenly we feel exhausted and disgusted. We lose ourselves in life, and we don't even know what we're getting ourselves into. We should have followed our dreams and realized them, but no, we choose the path of our desires and in the end we end up a happy person, fully content with ourselves, and with our life in general. Good things happen to good people. Today, I want to change my mind, I want to go where I want to go. I want to create, to paint, to write, to do what I want, what I'm best at, what I

Q: How to get dynamic number of rows in gridview My question is regarding how to get the number of rows in a gridview during runtime. I have code as shown below: Protected Sub GridView1_RowDataBound(ByVal sender As Object, ByVal e As GridViewRowEventArgs) If e.Row.RowType = DataControlRowType.DataRow Then Dim rowCount As Integer = (e.Row.RowIndex + 1) - e.Row.Parent.Parent.Controls("GridView1").Rows.Count() e.Row.Parent.Rows.RemoveAt(e.Row.RowIndex) End If End Sub This code will remove the row if I try to delete it. Now I want to show some message "You are trying to delete last row in the gridview" in a label if there is last row of the gridview. How can I get the number of rows in the gridview during runtime? A: You can use RowCount property of the GridView. You can use this syntax to determine whether the row is the last row of the GridView. If e.Row.RowIndex = GridView1.Rows.Count - 1 Then '.. your code End If And for displaying message, Code for warning when you will delete the last row of gridview protected void GridView1_RowDeleting(object sender, GridViewDeleteEventArgs e) { if(e.Row.RowIndex==GridView1.Rows.Count-1) { e.Cancel=true; Response.Write("You cannot delete last row of the gridview"); } } The present invention relates to a semiconductor device and a method for fabricating the same. More particularly, it relates to a semiconductor device having a step structure and capable of preventing leakage current, which is generated due to diffusion and re-diffusion of a gate electrode material, and preventing deterioration of the electric characteristics of the semiconductor device, and a method for fabricating the same. In the prior art, a semiconductor device, having a structure as
