A building for the living, where the elevators do not stop and no lights come on. It was your design, built for you and your residents, but now, they are all gone, and there is no elevator working. You must find out why this happened, and why no one else is here. Will you be able to escape with your sanity and survive the dark foreboding place that has become your home? I hope you enjoyed this doofy as hell devlog! Thanks for reading! EDIT: Added World 1.2 update! Static 2.0 update is finally here, and brings with it a new 'World' (!), an awesome new companion, Easter eggs, extended storyline, updated assets, and even more! To celebrate the release of our new patch, we would like to give away a free copy of the game to anyone who's interested. There will only be a limited amount of these, so if you want to take part, please send an email to staticgame@dogwoodgaming.com before March 1st! We will announce the winner on March 8th.

World Update We've listened to your feedback, and have listened to your eyes, and we've made some adjustments to the way you explore your environments! You can no longer simply jump on objects and inspect them, you must now get up on them. You can also no longer inspect doors from the ground level, you must now get on top of them to check what's on the other side. This allows for more immersive immersion into the world, and aids in exploration.

Companion We also feel that the constant switching of characters will get old after a while, and we can't promise that we will continue to make them, so we decided to implement a little more personality into our new character, Herbie. He has 'helped' you through several of your adventures and is here to guide you once again. Herbie has his own unique abilities, which allow him to find secrets, unlock new achievements, and even access new content! Of course, he's more than happy to help! See all of these changes below!

New World Map

You can now obtain new objects by going to the new map system in the world! These allow you to get objects that you couldn't reach before, depending on what environment you've accessed. You can view an overview of your environment by visiting the so called 'overworld' to the left of your screen, and you

Features Key:

- global communication: 2-pane text chat between game users
- friend and foe detection & filtering
- graphical message scoreboards
- auto file transfers
- message threading
- read receipts
- contact lists
- access all message boards & connections in the pane
- low byte count, small files
- settings can be configured on-the-fly

Lempo Game Key side by side

If you have a lot of chat messages to read, it's helpful to see them in two window panes next to each other. Two window panes with text in Lempo are basically just a graphical file explorer in terms of features, but they also allow for small file transfer, read receipts and threading.

Controls

I see the following controls used very often, so I figured they might be worth the trouble to add to my list:

- Esc
Starts the game engine
when using Lempo on a laptop, this will also turn off the touch screen
- Arrow keys
Move text cursor around in message threads (viewing different messages, moving messages up/down) works when textviewer settings are set up to use arrows for scrolling (default) when textviewer settings are set to use single click for scrolling (recommended), use arrow keys to move
- PgUp/PgDn
Scroll text view per "screen height" the higher you set the value, the bigger the scroll per "screen height" gets might not be a bad idea to play around with this for some time on a relatively large file list

What's new:

Not all heroes are men. There are a number of beautiful and talented heroines that are just as good in a story as their male counterparts, if not better. Some have found fame on their lovely looks alone, others on their witty personalities, and a few have had the opposite happen as they were outshone by the more popular male lead. This week, we look at some charming women who also have the skills necessary to be an interesting character.

- The Great Anastasia image - wtawgb There are so many things we can say about Anastasia Romanov, the great grandmother of the present Tsar, and the mother of Nicholas II. She was staunch in her commitment for her faith and her husband, Tsar Nicholas II, was a worthy opponent in his devotion to her. She was a wonderful mother who raised four children, most of whom survived all the way through World War II. On the other side, she may have been a terrible mother, as it was while Anastasia was pregnant with Olga in 1909 that she had a miscarriage and subsequently pushed the child out herself. This went on for several days, and a dreadful scene of puerperal fever ensued for both the mother and grandmother. Olga, the princess portrayed, was eventually taken to a convent when she recovered and Anastasia reportedly wished to join her. Of course, such a scandal would have put an end to any chance of bringing her back into society if ever there was one. Had it not been for the Tsar's miraculous escape while witnessing the botched assassination attempt in St. Petersburg in 1905, Anastasia would have been exiled just as Olga would have been, none the wiser of her daughter's discovery. A Russian version of Cinderella, Anastasia was adored by Russian women for the way she managed to defy the law while still remaining true to herself. Had it not been for Vladimir Lenin (who's aunt had been one of Anastasia's acquaintances), the revolutionaries might have succeeded in changing the system and returning Anastasia to society, but the year 1912 would bring the revolution and eliminate the Tsars forever, marking the start of Russian Revolution and the rise of Putin's Russia. - The Goodwife of Bath image - george p stooh

WEBSITE: FACEBOOK: TWITTER: "Jump" is a horrible game for anyone who is a bit of a perfectionist, but thankfully I'm a perfectionist so I thought I would share how to beat every single level on this game.

This is a game inspired by Injinerator and Terraria, where you must jump from platform to platform without falling by tapping the screen. The amount of points you receive are determined by how high you reach as well as how accurately you are jumping. Please give me some tips and tricks, that will hopefully make my guides better for you. Beat Strategy: - You will always find a ceiling in the middle of the platforms, and at the start and end of each room - You want to jump as high as possible so you can hit the ceiling - There are in-air platforms where you can land on to an adjacent platform - It is actually best to only use the left and right moving platforms, at times it will be necessary to use a still moving platform to make a jump - It is also possible to jump from a platform without jumping into the air - You can fire a death beam from the worm that floats above the circular platform, this does not make the platforms disappear - If you fall down, you do not lose points but you do lose
