From Cygames, the creators of PLAYERUNKNOWN'S BATTLEGROUNDS, the SEGA-published fantasy action role-playing game ADOTKO, comes a new fantasy action role-playing game. Rise, Tarnished, and become an Elden Lord! In The Lands Between, a series of continents beyond the realm of reality, a new world of action, mysticism, and fantasy awaits those who prove their determination to acquire the power of the Elden Ring! Note * The game is currently scheduled for a release on June 27, 2018. The release date may be subject to change.  The data of the demo version is fully stored in the main file of the full version.  The game was not fully tested in this process.Q: Vue.js global fire handler I know this is not something particularly new, but is it possible to have a global "onXXX" event handler (e.g. a global "fire" event handler)? My scenario is the following: I have a project with multiple Vue.js components, where all of them should listen to the same Fire event. For now I'm doing this: fireEvent.add("my-parent-component-name", "my-child-component-name", "my-event"); Vue.prototype.$on = function(event, fn, eventListener) { this.$listeners.push({ event: event, fn: fn, eventListener: eventListener }); }; Vue.prototype.$once = function(event, fn, eventListener) { this.$listeners.push({ event: event, fn: fn, eventListener: eventListener, once: true }); }; Vue.prototype.$off = function(event, fn, eventListener) { this.$listeners = this.$listeners.filter(function(el) { return el.event!== event || el.fn!== fn || el.eventListener!== eventListener; }); }; But I'm sure there must be some kind of more "official" way of doing this. A: The idea here would be something like the following. window.addEventListener('my-event', function() { this

Q: Does anything change if you define a function within another function? I recently wrote a function for class where I solved for an embedded system with a dynamic microchip. Instead of using if else statements, I defined a function called squeeze and inside, a larger function called solve. Does the programming language make any difference between the two (mainly the time being taken, but just in case)? #include #include void
