In order to save this post, select a stash from drop-down menu or type in a new one: I had two major issues with the art. First: the artist has a limited range of expression. During the design phase, I decided the piece should be a combination of the great Waldschmidt illustrations I've seen and my own watercolor style, so I agreed to have the art done. In the process, I saw nothing of the vital things we wanted in the piece (the figures' expressions, the faces of the people in the farmhouse, the details in the barn). The artist re-did the piece and I immediately liked it and felt a need to comment. I was shocked at how little he changed the piece. I thought this was unusual in this artist's work. At the time, I didn't expect him to be proficient in blue-collar images. I also didn't expect him to be able to mesh watercolor with my idea of farmhouse style. I got it immediately and that is very unusual with this artist. He has done two other pieces for us and they are fun and have a lot of character. In the second art commission, I got together with the painter and walked him through the brief. I wanted an oil painting. It was a challenge. He did an amazing job. We got the image we wanted and I still like it now. I had two major issues with the art. 6d1f23a050
