once you have the updated version of minecraft on your system (that is, minecraft, because it is called such by most people) and you have downloaded it from the microsoft store and installed it, you will have to download and run the minecraft game client. once you run the client, you will need to register the game in order to gain access to it and to play it online. when you start the client, you will be asked to register as a new user. as i explained in my last blog post, minecraft is a game that allows you to play in the sky, not unlike a sims game, and the sky is based on its position, so it will be fun when you can fly and as you go down to the ground you are going to feel the consequences that you have created in that part of the game. there are only a few things i want you to do to make your minecraft experience more enjoyable: the screen is now an interactive screen, which means that you can touch it to give orders to the mob. the game is easier to learn and play, especially when you find yourself in the sky, so i think that will make you enjoy the game more. i wish i had included some funny things, but i am not sure that you will get the same hacks in the sims 3 , because the game is very different. in the version of minecraft that you now have, there are a few changes in the game, and i will try to tell you all about them. when you start the game, you will immediately find a video tutorial, which will show you how to use the game. the first thing to do is to create a world. now that you are in the sky, you are going to have many things to do, so you will have to choose a place to put your base. the world is huge, but you can choose only one place, which will be the place where you can go to build your base. let's see what happens when you choose it.
